OUR LONDON AIR-MAIL LETTER

NEW APPOINTMENT TO AN ANCIENT LONDON OFFICE

THE NEW TELEPHONE EXCHANGE: GOVERNMENT AS RACE HORSE OWNER: TWO CENTURIES OF COVENT GARDEN THEATRE

(BY "TOWNSMAN")
(SPECIAL AIR-MAIL SERVICE)

Judge Holman Gregory's Promotion.

The King has approved the appointment of his Honour Judge Holman Gregory, K.C., to the office of Common Serjeant of the City of London, in succession to Sir Henry Dickens.
The office of Common Serjeant is one of the oldest in the City of London, so ancient that the date of its creation is unknown. As far back as a charter of Edward II (1307) there is an article ratified by the King that "the Chamberlain the Common (Town) Clerk, and the Common Serjeant be chosen by the commonalty," and that no serjeant should "take a fee, or do execution on the citizens except he be elected by the commonalty." This Charter was confirmed by others of Edward III, Richard II, and Henry VIII.
Up to the passing of the Local Government Act, 1888, election rested with the Common Council, but by that Act, all future appointments were vested in the Crown, the privilege of fixing the salary and defining the duties of the office remaining with the Corporation. It has now been decided at the Court of Common Council that the salary of the Common Serjeant shall in future be permanently fixed at £5,000 per annum.

Largest Telephone Exchange.

Work is approaching completion on a new London telephone exchange which has been designed to take the place of four of the existing exchanges, and which, when the scheme of incorporation is concluded, will be the largest exchange in the country. It is to be opened next month, and will then have about 5,000 lines in operation, but when the four old exchanges are finally closed down it will be the control for at least 30,000 lines. The new centre will, of course, be entirely automatic, with a staff mainly composed of engineers, whose task will be the maintenance of the intricate mechanism in perfect working order. The majority of the women operators at present required at the old exchanges will not lose their employment, but will be transferred to other centres which have not yet changed over to the automatic system.

Covent Garden's Birthday.

Within the next few days Covent Garden Opera House will celebrate its 200th birthday. The original building which was erected towards the end of 1732, certainly has been demolished and forgotten, but the present structure marks the spot faithfully, and can still be regarded as the chief seat of grand opera in London. It is perhaps not generally known that Covent Garden once belonged to the Abbey of St. Peter, Westminster and that Inigo Jones designed quite a romantic piazza for the place. It is the third oldest theatre in London's West End, and it is interesting to note that, although its fame is operative, the first production ever staged there was a comedy, a revival of "The Way of the World."

Graham Wallis.

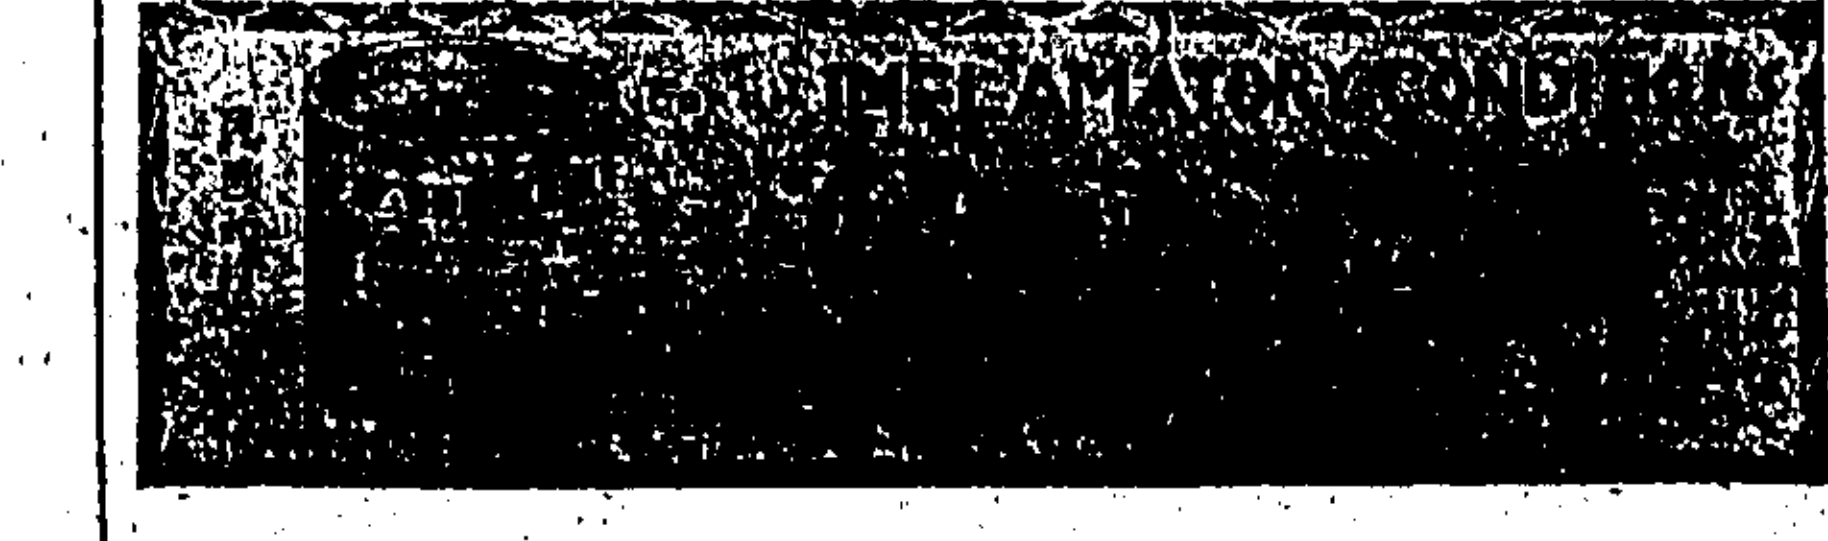

Many friends and fellow-workers of the late Graham Wallis meet on Oct. 30 to honour his memory in the School of Economics, where his life-work is still a living influence. A poem is to be dedicated to Graham Wallis in the new buildings of the school. In the company that listened to the appreciations of the great teacher at the meeting were many leading writers on economics, and progressives in politics and social reform. Amongst the speakers were Mr. H. G. Wells, Sir Josiah Stamp, and Sir Arthur Sieff-Maitland.

A Fine Flat Achievement.

With the completion of the new block of flats which was opened by Lady Patricia Ramsay the number of flats built in the last six years by the St. Pancras House Improvement Society totals 150. The society, formed in 1924, with £250 capital, no site, and much hope, aimed modestly at reconditioning some of the lamentable houses in the Somers Town area, and did so. Then it began to build, first sets and then blocks of flats. By the beginning of this year it had raised altogether £102,000, and had completed its latest block of flats with a delightful nursery school which Princess Arthur of Connaught opened.

The national crisis seemed to threaten the plans for the flats, but the society managed to raise more money than in the previous year. The new five-storyed St. Francis block, like its twin, the St. Christopher, is built on three sides of a WOMAN'S PAGE.

ROUND THE SHOPS

[By "EVE."]

Lane, Crawford's.—Now that the dance season has come round again women's thoughts are concerned chiefly with evening and dance wear and, in this connection, I would strongly advise an early visit to the Ladies' Salon at Lane, Crawford's, where the newest and most lovely creations are on display. Space does not permit me to go into details but I'm sure the new frocks are among the most delightful I have seen for a long time. The accessories which complete the evening toilette are becoming increasingly important and give the final and chic note to the ensemble. Especially attractive are the new evening bags which this season are definitely of the beaded variety and are most colourful and useful. There are also some delightful examples in silver and gold kid, which should give a distinctive touch to most evening frocks.

Whiteaway's.—The "woolly" season has definitely arrived and Whiteaway's, up to the minute as usual, are displaying this week a large and most beautiful variety of tweeds suitable for winter suits, coats and skirts; some of these are really most attractive and should make up very well in the new tweed costumes and coats which promise this year to be the mode. "Vivella" wool has this week been reduced to $1.25 per hank and those who make a point of knitting scarves, pullovers, jerseys and kiddies' garments should avail themselves of this outstanding offer. There is a very large variety to choose from and the new colours and mixtures are as yet only procurable at Whiteaway's. I would remind you that Whiteaway's "Toyland" is opened; and if you wanted to give the kiddies a treat, pay a visit.

The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop.—There are many lovely new models of winter suits, frocks and hats now being shown at The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop. The two and three-piece suits are beautifully tailored and are in a variety of the latest styles. The popular colours seem to be navy, brown, russet brown and green in varying shades and there is a wonderful selection of hats to pick from to match the different costumes. There are hats with small brims, and toques with little eye veils, each with a suspicion of ribbon trimming, which gives a rather fascinating and very feminine touch to the hat. The little black models are especially elegant and they have the virtue of giving a snappy effect to all and every winter outfit, regardless of colour or style.

Gordon's.—Plain styles in footwear apparently are still to remain favourites this season, the court shoe and the low-tie holding their own against all-comers. There are, however, many close competitors, chief among which is the dull matt surface in many styles and shapes. Gordon's this week have on display some very attractive shoe models for the coming dance season; these are in a great variety of styles, materials and colours, including kid, satin, crepe de chine brocades, gold and silver kid, the court, sandal and one strap with diamanté buckle predominating. There are also some very elegant modes for morning and afternoon wear of which the style and workmanship are second to none.

YOUR TEA TABLE

Flower decorated china is as popular as ever, and the modern designs and colourings make a fashionable tea table a collection of delicate flower pictures. The best examples of this typically English china are now to be seen at Harrods, where an interesting Exhibition of Paragon china is being held. The exhibits include new designs which have been purchased by the Queen, the Princess Royal, and the Duchess of York. There is a delightful "Two for Luck" nursery set which is a replica of one ordered by the Duchess of York for her own nursery. The design was inspired by an incident during Princess Elizabeth's christening, when someone noticed two magpies flying overhead and remarked, "Two for luck."

The various tables at the Exhibition have been arranged according to the suggestion of a number of well-known hostesses, including the Duchess of Sutherland and the Marchioness of Londonderry. They are an inspiration to women who take pride in their tea or dinner tables. Every detail of effective arrangement has been thought out. Flower decorations, lighting, and even table cloths have been chosen, so that, with the china used, there may be a perfect blending of decorative schemes.

Examples of the new handles—solid handles formed by two flower petals—are to be seen on some of the cups. Another set shows a flower group or a garden scene decorating the whole of the inside of the cup, while the outside and the saucer is in a plain colour delicately tinted to tone with the "interior" decoration.

British and Best. In normal times there are as many as 78,000 men and women employed in the British china industry.

Now, through foreign competition, this number is much reduced, and unemployment and hardship have invaded the Potteries. This display of the fine work of British potters should do much to bring home the advantages of china that is "made in England." The designs are far better than any that come from abroad, the taste of the china is fragile, yet it is wonderfully strong, and the prices are remarkably low. The Exhibition will remain open until the end of next week.

WOMAN WITH EYES OF RASPUTIN

RUSSIAN MONK'S DAUGHTER IN LONDON

The woman with the Rasputin eyes is in London.

When she looks at you you can feel their mesmeric power. Wide apart, deep-set, of glittering blue, their magnetic quality is heightened by the amazing span between brow and lash.

They are, indeed, possessed of the same mysterious powers which raised Rasputin himself to that supremacy at the Russian Imperial Court which ended only with his murder.

The woman with Rasputin's eyes is his daughter, Mme. Solovieff. But they have brought her no happiness; her parentage has made her life a scourge.

Yet this is how his daughter speaks of him—this monk who had a wife and two daughters:—"My father was a simple man, and not the devil he has been painted. In our village councils his wise sayings brought him such fame that the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholasivitch, brother of the Czar, decided that he would be an ideal tutor for the Czar's wife."

Wanted to Stop War.

"Soon my father's wisdom was as much prized at the Winter Palace as it had been at our village councils. In 1910 he was working to conclude a separate peace with Germany. Prince Yusupoff, the Czar's nephew, thought this peace would be dishonourable for Russia, and murdered my father."

"My mother then showed the Czar a letter she had received from my father five months previously, in which he foretold his own murder, and said, 'With me the Romanoff family shall fall, and revolution come upon Russia.'" square and has galleries on every floor. In the centre of the open space is a circular drying ground, lines radiating to twenty-four posts. No more orderly way of hanging clothes out to dry can be imagined.

LETTER

The Bishop of Lewes, who came on his episcopal robes and mitre to bless the building and to dedicate it to St. Francis, said that sunlight did not depend on environment, but that family life must always do so. Afterwards he went up to the nursery school, from which he had a view of the doleful-looking buildings across the way that are presently to give place to still more blocks of flats.

The Government's Racehorse.

That a Government Department should be influenced in a decision by the possession of a racehorse is hard to conceive and opens up a new problem in administration. There is a possibility, however, that the original intention to disperse the National Stud at the end of this year may be to some extent revised on account of the two-year-old filly Myrobella. By common consent Myrobella is the best two-year-old filly that has been seen on the English turf for many years, and she has swept her way from one success to another.

Myrobella runs in the name of Lord Lonsdale, but she belongs to the Government. Under an arrangement which has existed for some years, the filly bred at the National Stud that Sir Henry Greer, its manager, wanted to retain for breeding purposes have been leased to Lord Lonsdale for their racing careers, he paying all the training expenses and entries and taking two-thirds of the amount won in stakes, the remaining third going to the Treasury. This year Myrobella has won a sum approaching £12,000 in stakes, so that the Government is the richer by nearly £4,000.

It is hard in these days to value an animal like Myrobella, but in view of the amount she is likely to win next year, apart from her value for breeding purposes, it is probable that someone would be found to give £15,000 or perhaps £20,000 for her were she offered at auction. She is thus a valuable asset.

"THE HAPPY ENDING"
THRILLING SHIPWRECK
FILM AT QUEEN'S

"The Happy Ending," now showing the Queen's Theatre is a really good show and should not be missed. It is thrilling from beginning to end with three excellent players, Anne Grey, Benita Hume and George Barrand in the leading roles.

During Mrs. Craddock's (Anne Grey) absence in England, her husband, Dennis (George Barrand) domiciled in India, becomes infatuated with Yvonne (Benita Hume). He is a likeable but unsatisfactory person. News of his wife's return to India leads Dennis to break with Yvonne, but the latter, in order to force a quarrel between Dennis and his wife, leaves a slipper in a dressing table drawer. Events came about as Yvonne hoped, and the married couple's happiness was shattered by Mrs. Craddock's discovery of the slipper.

However they make things up and decide to return to England. The determined Yvonne hears the news and catches the same boat. Later there is a shipwreck and Dennis and his wife are again parted. Mildred devotes her life to her child, and Dennis wanders in an aimless way about the World, then Dennis sees, in an English magazine the forthcoming seventeenth birthday party to his daughter. He returns to England and arrives at Mildred's house on the night of the party. Mildred had told Molly that her father was killed in the shipwreck. "Do a decent thing, for once in your life—and go," Mildred pleaded. He kisses Molly, as she lies asleep and goes out of their lives for ever.

"THE DOOMED BATTALION"
UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION AT CENTRAL THEATRE.

A trade notice states:—A little known but highly dramatic phase of the great World War is graphically portrayed in Universal's "The Doomed Battalion," which opens at the Central Theatre to-morrow. The setting of this unusual film is laid in the rugged grandeur of the Dolomite Alps of Austria, where thrilling battles between Austrian and Italian mountain troops decided important issues in the struggle of nations.

Tala Birrell, brilliant European star of many Continental triumphs, makes her debut as the loyal wife of an Austrian mountain guide (Continued at foot of next column)

SUNNYBROOK FARM"
MARION NIXON AND RALPH
BELLAMY IN LEAD

A trade notice states:—The adventures and romance of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," as vivified in the Fox production featuring Marion Nixon and Ralph Bellamy, coming to the King's Theatre very soon. The choice of dainty, winsome, appealing Miss Nixon and tall, handsome Bellamy to enact the leading roles in this important feature picture came, it is said, as a reward for splendid work in recent successes.

Miss Nixon, it will be recalled, scored individually opposite Charles Farrell in "After To-morrow," then repeated her success with Warner Baxter in "Amateur Daddy." Bellamy, who until now has had the up-hill struggle of establishing himself in unsympathetic, or "heavy" roles was given the romantic part of Dr. Adam Ladd because of the capable manner in which he portrayed the German officer in "Surrender," his important character study of the Juvenile Court judge in "Young American," and his depiction of the incorruptible police captain in "Disorderly Conduct."

Lavishly of production in both locale and settings is promised in the current version of the Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson story. It was filmed on a specially reconstructed Sunnybrook Farm, near Santa Cruz, California, with the reproduction of a New England blizzard in which the dramatic climax occurs.

Briefly, the film story recounts the main adventures of Rebecca, revelling around her intense desire to win the regard of her spinster aunt; her interest in obtaining a wedding ring for the mother of Jack-O-Lantern, and her romance with Dr. Adam Ladd. Mac Marish, as Aunt Jane, and Louise Glosner Hale, as Aunt Miranda, portray the aged spinster aunts of Rebecca. Alfred Santell, whose "Daddy Long Legs" was one of last season's triumphs, directed "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" from a scenario written by S. N. Behrman and Sonya Levron.

who must harbor the man commissioned to destroy her husband's company. The tense situation and its exciting solution provide the screen with one of the most dramatic sequences ever filmed in years. Make no mistake about "The Doomed Battalion." It is not just another war picture. It is different to anything that has been done on the screen before—it is a truly great film and thru it all runs a beautiful love story that will touch everyone.

JOE E. BROWN'S HOMELY FACE
TO BE SEEN AT QUEEN'S THEATRE ON SUNDAY

A trade notice states:—Be it ever so homely, Joe E. Brown's expressive face is good enough for him.

In fact, it is so good to him that his new contract with Warner Brothers contains several clauses that prevent studio executives from marring his picturesque features with whiskers, mustaches, or any other artificial adornment that would make Brown's comely countenance other than the way nature carved it.

Never can it be said of Joe E. Brown, whose latest talkie role is the leading comedy part in "May be It's Love," the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone collegiate comedy-drama showing on Sunday at the Queen's Theatre, that he had to use anything other than his normal physiognomy to throw audiences into convulsions of laughter.

Never will long drooping mustaches hide the enormous cavern which is his mouth.

Ever will a flowing beard cover his comic chin.

The uniquely fashioned visage will remain for posterity exactly as it is.

As long as this contract lasts, Joe E. will be unable to portray such famous characters of the bearded fraternity as Abraham Lincoln, Rip Van Winkle, or either one of the Smith Brothers.

Joan Bennett enacts the leading role in "May be It's Love." The cast includes James Hall, Laura Lee, Anders Randall, George Irving, Howard Jones and others. William Wellman directed. Joseph Jackson did the screen play and

"PALMY DAYS" AT THE KING'S

HOW EDDIE CANTOR
WORKED UP THE FILM

A trade notice states:—Comedy, like a gold mine, is found where least expected, is the opinion of Eddie Cantor, star of Samuel Goldwyn's "Palmy Days," now showing at the King's Theatre. And like gold, it is usually buried deep. It is just as grave a problem to get the humour out of a situation as gold from the bowels of the earth.

No prospector for gold ever worked harder than this same Eddie Cantor in working out the comedy of his new film, "Palmy Days." Samuel Goldwyn, provided the famous star with a skilled array of literary alchemists in preparing this story. The book is by Guy Bolton, and Morris Ryskind and David Freedman, both authors of Broadway stage successes, prepared the dialogue. Half a dozen film writers assisted in inserting comedy sequences in the script. And then there was Edward A. Sutherland, borrowed from Paramount to direct.

But Eddie Cantor's hand work appeared in every phase of this complex collaborative effort. He set in at every conference, constructing gags, introducing and polishing comedy dialogue, as the group of writers suggested a situation Eddie acted it out for them. He played hero, heroine, villain and character roles. He even put on a frock coat, plug hat, beard and whiskers, to test an idea.

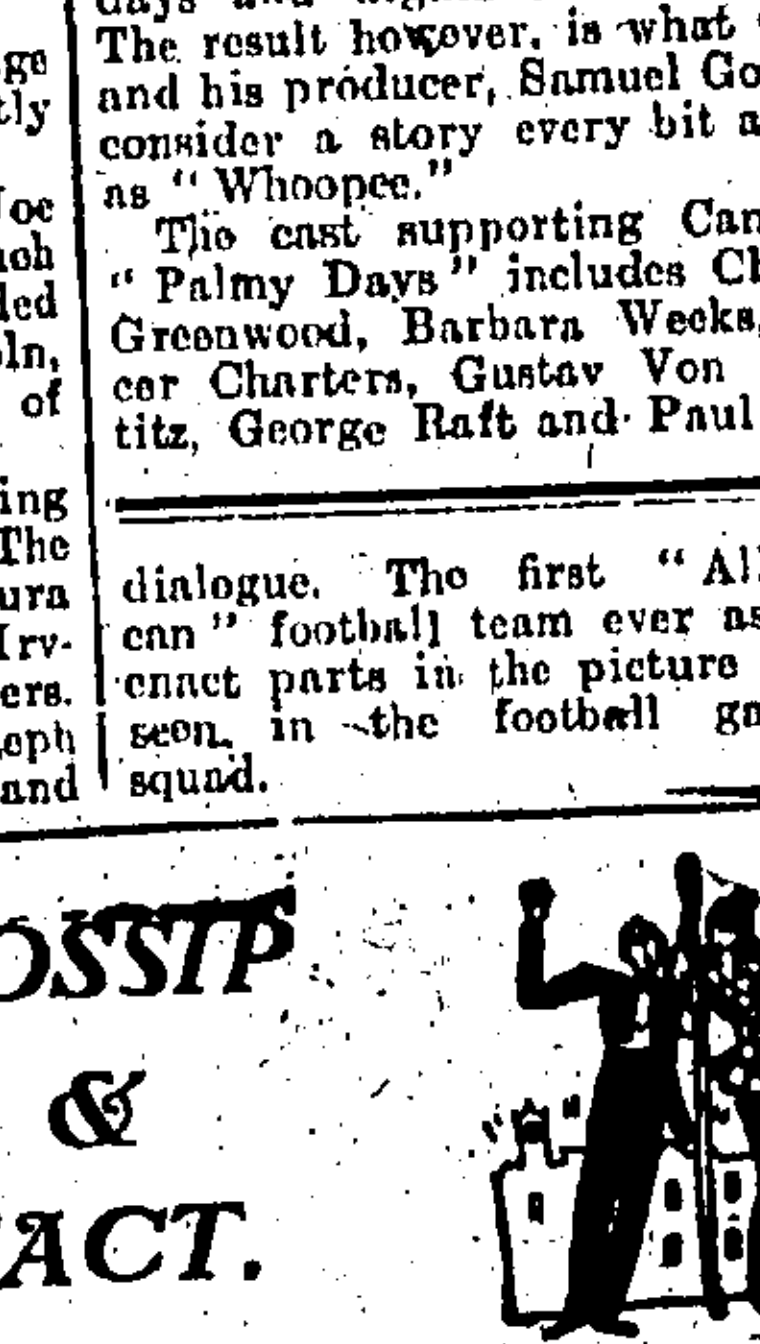

For more than two months Cantor sat in with his writers in adapting to film script the original story which Bolton and Ryskind had created for him. It is a story built around the fake fortune-telling racket, with Eddie serving as the assistant to a bogus seer.

Cantor estimates that the continuity was written and rewritten no less than twenty times in the days and nights of literary toil. The result however, is what Cantor and his producer, Samuel Goldwyn, consider a story every bit as good as "Whoopie."

The cast supporting Cantor in "Palmy Days" includes Charlotte Greenwood, Barbara Weeks, Spencer Charters, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, George Raft and Paul Page.

In Between!

You know that period of the year, both now and again in the Spring when our climate is uncertain. Some mornings and evenings are cold, but not cold enough to need an overcoat, yet an extra garment is needed.

For this "in between" season a woollie, or pull-over, with or without sleeves, meets the requirement.

Made in Scotland of pure wool in a delightful range of colours and designs, and being "Scotch" Knit they are sturdily made to withstand hard wear. The very thing, too, for wear after a strenuous round of Golf or a hard set of Tennis.

CLAIM AGAINST MR. SHANK

SHROFF GETS JUDGMENT FOR $1,000

Judgment for the plaintiff with costs was awarded by the Puisne Judge, Mr. Justice Wood in a case in which Lam Shiu Cho claimed $1,000 from Mr. E. D. Shank.

Mr. P. M. Hodgson appeared for the plaintiff and the defendant was not in Court.

The Puisne Judge (to Mr. Hodgson). He was represented at the last hearing, was he not?

Mr. Hodgson: Mr. Strellett was present and put in a doctor's certificate: I saw Mr. Strellett the other day and he apparently had no further instructions.

The case was then proceeded ex parte. Mr. Hodgson: "The claim against the defendant is for $1,000 deposited with defendant as security in respect of plaintiff's employment as a shroff and which said sum has become returnable to the plaintiff."

"The plaintiff was employed by Mr. Shank on September 28 1931 and he started his work on October 1, that year, at a certain salary and Mr. Shank asked him to put up a deposit of $1,000 as security, which the plaintiff did and he received a receipt signed by Mr. Shank for that money."

No Return of Deposit.

"On August 1 this year, the plaintiff sent in his resignation which was accepted and he left the firm at the expiry of the month's notice. He asked for the return of his deposit but was unable to get it and he instructed us to write to Mr. Shank, which we did, setting out the facts and asking for the return of the deposit. We received a reply which stated that he admitted having signed the receipt for the amount but explained that Mr. Lam had been employed by the Chinese Merchant Loan Investment and Construction Company Limited since that Company's formation, and that the company, under an agreement with Mr. Shank, had taken over all the latter's liabilities."

Between Plaintiff and Mr. Shank. "The plaintiff will tell you that when the Company was formed he went with Mr. Shank who was managing director of the Company, to work there. The deposit was purely a matter between plaintiff and Mr. Shank."

After evidence had been given by the plaintiff, judgment was given for the plaintiff with cost, the Puisne Judge remarking: "It does not seem to me that Mr. Shank has any defence in this case."

BEAVERS AND TIGER CUBS

ADDITIONS TO THE ZOO

At the Canadian National Exhibition, which closed at Toronto on September 10, the Provincial Parks had exhibits of living animals, including beaver. By the kindness of the Department of Lands and Forests of Ontario, two pairs of these beaver have been "permanently loaned" to the London Zoological Society.

Beaver are creatures which resent the presence of strangers in their home, and the new arrivals will not be placed in the pond at the London Zoo, but will be sent to Whipsnade, where there are three good ponds separated by water-gates, so that it will be possible to keep the new arrivals by themselves until there seems a good chance of getting them to join the present small colony.

From India.

The Dewan and President of the Council of Administration of Dhar State has sent, as a gift from the Minor Ruler of Dhar, a very fine pair of Bengal tiger cubs, which arrived in excellent condition, the Bombay Natural History Society having arranged their transport. These were welcome gifts, but the Society is now rather overstocked with the larger carnivores.

For the Aviary.

Mr. A. Miller has presented a white-backed or African white-necked vulture from Nigeria. This species is much like the Bengal vulture, which used to be called the white-backed vulture, but is rather darker in colour. The King has sent to the gardens on deposit 28 budgerigars, and four named geese have been bred and reared. These birds belong to a sub-family with species in Australia, Africa, and South America, in some respects intermediate between ducks and geese. The named geese of Australia makes its nest in hollow trees and is accustomed to perch on very tall trees. It is a dark-coloured bird, with a brown head, green speculum, breast streaked with black, and a black abdomen. The males are much darker than the females, and can be distinguished from them throughout the year.

ANCESTRAL WORSHIP

CANTON POLITICAL COUNCIL UPHOLDS OLD CUSTOM

(From Our Special Correspondent)

CANTON, November 10.

The old and much honoured Chinese custom of the participation by male members of a clan at the yearly or half-yearly worship at the graves of the clan's ancestors, and the subsequent distribution of the pork offered as sacrifices, which is practised throughout the province, is being upheld by the South West Political Council. At its meeting yesterday, a resolution was adopted rescinding a decision of the Chungshan District Government ordering that money put aside by clans for this specific purpose of pork distribution be turned over to the Government for use in the reconstructional development of the district.

This Chungshan district decision was made some two months ago. It was realised that quite a large sum of money is being regularly expended this way, while such money can be better used in ways profitable to all concerned. As the model district of the province, it was felt that Chungshan should take the lead in doing away with the custom. So orders were issued that there need be no further distributions of pork, and that money which would have been thus spent should be contributed towards funds which were to be used for the development of the district.

This decision was in due course submitted to the Provincial Government and then to the Political Council where it was turned down yesterday, it being held that such money being the people's private money, could not be so liberally tampered with by the government. Where there is no open encouragement to the observance of the custom under reference, it will be seen that the money involved is that set aside for the specific purpose of pork distribution, and there will therefore be no likelihood of it being not so used now that it need not be handed over to the authorities.

SILK GOOD MARKET IMPROVES

COLD WEATHER BOON TO TRADE

(Central Press)

CANTON, Nov. 17.

With national spirit rampant in Canton, the silk goods market has made considerable improvement. The cold weather is a boon to this trade, as well-to-do people are ordering silk clothing for winter wear besides cotton padded garments.

Chinese pongee and crepe are selling well because of their soft quality which means comfort to the wearer, and fashionable women are particularly attracted by the new designs and creations of the present season.

Patriotic people in Canton prefer to use native goods, as in the case of silk wear the price of this commodity is very cheap this year. Men would like to use silk materials for their dress instead of imported serge and worsted.

THE ARMY

INCREASED PAY FOR LIEUTENANTS.

An alteration has been made in the Royal Warrant for the pay of the Army by which lieutenants of 13 years' commissioned service will receive increased rates. The change affects the cavalry, infantry of the line, and Royal Tank Corps, and is made in view of the abnormal situation in regard to promotion to the rank of captain at present existing in these arms. The grant of the higher rates will be regarded as a temporary measure to be withdrawn when the normal situation in this respect is restored. The new rates will take effect as from August 1 last.

The rate for a lieutenant of Cavalry, Infantry, or R.T.C., if commissioned before October 28, 1925, after 13 years' commissioned service is raised to 19s. 10d. a day, and if commissioned on or after October 28, 1925, after 13 years' the increase is to 18s. a day. These new rates are subject to the 11 per cent. reduction now in force, which makes the amounts 17s. 8d. and 16s. respectively.

The position of the senior lieutenants is better in some regiments than in others, but there are cases of the senior having been promoted in the last year of the War, and in 1919 and 1920. The opportunities for promotion are being closely studied in order to bring about a normal flow as quickly as possible.

LAND EXCHANGE FOR CANTON?

CITY COUNCIL TO COST $10,000 MONTHLY FOR UPKEEP

(From Our Special Correspondent)

CANTON, November 16.

The newly inaugurated Canton City Council, which is holding its first plenary session now, is expected to conclude its meeting to-day. Many proposals and recommendations will in due course be made to the Municipal Government effecting various aspects of the city administration.

One proposal submitted to the meeting advocates the establishment in Canton of a Land Exchange, through which deals in real estate in the city are to be negotiated. It is hoped that provision will thus be made for the protection of the interests of the property owners and the tenants of houses, and the abnormal rises in real estate values in the city as a result of the unscrupulousness of speculators will be avoided, through the regulation of such values by the Exchange proposed.

The meeting has passed the Council's own budget which comes to a little over $10,000 monthly. This amount includes salaries to be paid to a staff to be maintained at the permanent offices of the Council. Members will also be paid an allowance of $20 for attendance at the monthly meetings, which shall not occupy more than three days each month.

"THE MAN WHO LOST THE WAR"*MR. M. F. KEY'S AMUSING
REMINISCENCES

"The Man Who Lost War!" Mr. M. F. Key, delivering as a full-length lecture at the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home, Wanchai, on Wednesday evening his recent talk to the Rotary Club on "War Minus Martial Glory" found a new title and a new exordium for his remarks. He said he excogitated this whilst walking to the meeting through Queen's Road East, and as there can hardly exist on this planet a more uninspiring thoroughfare than Queen's Road East, any flowers of thought nurtured there are perhaps worth preserving on that account. The speaker said:—

A lecturer in Hong Kong once attempted to trace a particular motif of the human mind through 40,000 years and to do this in 40 minutes. He would be less exacting and only go back 3,000 years, to the time of Moses. (Laughter.) In those days the people were warned not to set up false gods and worship them, but the desire to do so continued through the centuries and was never more prevalent than at the end of the European War. Led by the trumpeting of the popular newspapers—those modern successors of the Prophets of Babel—the public sought here, there and everywhere for "The Man Who Won the War." Mr. Lloyd George was the leading candidate for this title at one time; various Allied statesmen were marked "also ran," the man who thought of the U-boat campaign had "honourable mention" (amongst the Allies); the Navy was favoured by some, and the infantryman in the trenches was sometimes suggested. (Laughter and applause.) As a rule, however, non-combatants and good talkers held the leading places in the contest. (Laughter.)

After Six Weeks Acquaintanceship.

Mr. Key remarked that he did not come before the meeting as "The Man Who Won the War." (Laughter.) They would probably say, when they heard his story, that he could easily carry off the honours as "The Man Who Lost the War." (Great laughter.) At any rate, the War and he lost one another, after they had only been acquainted six weeks.

The lecturer explained how, shortly after enlisting in an infantry battalion in 1915, he was pushed by the Army itself into a "funk-hole" and there remained "until the tumult and the shouting died." It was as though he had found himself in the centre of a typhoon; death and destruction were about a few miles away, but here all was peace and could occupy oneself rescuing the storm-tossed creatures cast by fate into the vortex of war. That, in fact, was his job—making life a little easier for those who would shortly go forth to battle with the elements beyond.

Medical Inspection Room.

Mr. Key gave a lively and amusing account of the work of the Medical Inspection Room in a training battalion under war conditions when there is so much to do in the way of treatment, inspections, inoculations, vaccinations, passing men for draft, preventing invalids before Medical Boards, and watching always for the inevitable malingering, that the Medical "U" is busy from morning to night. Towards the end of the war, the lecturer explained, when "Reconstruction" was the slogan of the hour and the necessity became apparent of fitting millions of lads just about to be demobilised for civil life, "Education" was stressed by the War Office. Regimental officers, more or less half-heartedly, tried to adapt themselves to "the latest stunt." "Our hero," as the novelists say, was invited to become an educational instructor. He modestly disclaimed any aptitude or previous experience. "That's all right," was the reply, "we none of us have any."

The Days of Squandermania.

Those were the days of squandermania and an Army Order offered warrant officers a pay and allowances to educational instructors who were rarely given an opportunity to instruct—only when it rained and puddles were "on." (Laughter.) Mr. Key said that in five months in the Army of Occupation in Germany he taught two classes for one hour each. As he knew practically nothing about the (Continued at foot of next column)

PURCHASER NOT SATISFIED*SEQUEL TO A CAR SALE CLAIM AND COUNTER CLAIM

Before Mr. Justice Wood yesterday, a claim for $1,011.20 balance due on a car sold to Albrecht Sander of Messrs. Sander Weiler and Company, Des Voeux Road was made by the Asiatic Motor Car Co. Ltd., of 439-445 Hennessy Road.

The claim was admitted by the defendant who was represented by Mr. Nigel (Messrs. Hastings, Denny and Bowley) and who issued a counter claim in which he stated that at the time of the sale the car was warranted to be the latest model Auburn Custom Sedan, which car contains certain features of construction, namely Startrix. Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers.

Breach of Warranty.

The car supplied to defendant was not the latest model but a 1931 model and did not contain the special features enumerated.

It was warranted at the time of sale to be in perfect running condition and without any defects. The car was, in fact, not in running order and the sum of $72.40 had already been spent by defendant in putting the car in good running order. He counter claimed for damages for breach of warranty and $72.40 the cost of repairs executed by him. He limited his counter claim to $1,000.

Mr. F. C. E. Rendall (Messrs. Russ and Co.) was for the plaintiffs. Mr. Nigel stated that the action was started in Original Jurisdiction and of the $5,011.20 owed by the defendant $4,000 had been paid on account and an additional $11.20 was paid at a later date to bring the action within the jurisdiction of the Summary Court.

Defendant's Version.

Defendant said he offered $5,000 for the car on the understanding that the car was the latest model and in perfect running order. The car was delivered at his house and at first seemed in order. After a week or two he had to send the car to the company's office to be attended to but apparently they did nothing to it. He consulted outside and was told that the machinery was not in order and the wheels were not properly set. He wrote to the plaintiffs, who, in reply, did not deny that the car was not the latest model but stated they would prove it was the latest model.

Evidence Called.

Evidence was then called by Mr. Nigel who put both Mr. and Mrs. Sander in the box. An employee of the Leighton Garage was also called who stated that he knew of a 1932 model car which was purchased in April.

Mr. Sander's Chauffeur, who was employed by Mr. Sander on the recommendation of the Asiatic Motor Car Co. Ltd., when called to the witness box stated that the car was not very powerful and although it could go up the steep quite well when there were no passengers, it behaved quite differently when three or four persons were in the car. Moreover the car was jerky when driven slowly. Witness caused some laughter when he said that the car was a "hugo eater," and when asked to explain what he meant he said that it consumed a good deal of gasoline, only doing about nine miles to a gallon. Witness also said that in conversation with an employee of the complainant firm named Tse Tin Yau, who was also known as Ah Wing, he learned that the car was a 1931 model and he also alleged that Ah Wing told him not to apprise his master (Mr. Sander) of this fact.

The case was adjourned until Wednesday.

particular subject which was down for study, and having regard to the amount of pay drawn in five months, he calculated that those two lessons cost the country $20 each, so that he claimed in all modesty to be not only the worst teacher, but the most over-paid teacher in the world. (Laughter.) Finally, through a clerical error at the War Office—a circular was sent by a sergeant-clerk to the Rhine Army which was not intended for them—Mr. Key was kept on full pay at Home in London for three months before being demobilised. As they used to say in the war days, "Some blighters have all the luck!"

UNUSUAL DEVELOPMENTS IN BRIBERY CASE*THREE CHINESE CONSTABLES MAY BE INVOLVED*"FACTS HARDLY FIT THE CASE"

An unusual turn of events took place before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy yesterday during the hearing of a case where a Chinese is charged with "procuring to be offered to four Chinese police constables a bribe amounting to $22.50 to forego their duty."

In ordinary language they were to refrain from prosecuting three licensed hawkers for breach of hawking regulations.

The defendant's name was Chan Fuk, and the constable concerned were Tong Tam, To Fuk, Kwong Wai and Fung Fuk.

Mr. F. X. d'Almada appeared for the defendant.

Chief Detective-Inspector Reynolds, in opening the case for the prosecution said that the four constables were on special hawk duty in Jubilee Street on October 31.

Collecting for the Police.

They arrested the defendant, who said he was collecting money from the hawkers to give to the police.

Constable Tong Tam in his evidence said that when the defendant came up to him in Jubilee Street, he said, "Please don't make an arrest, I will collect the money for you." Witness replied, "I am now taking you to see the Inspector." When the defendant was searched a notebook and one dollar were found in his possession.

Witness Cross-examined.

Cross-examined by Mr. d'Almada, witness denied that the defendant arranged for a bribe of $22.50 to be shared between witness and the other constables.

Mr. d'Almada: You did not receive any portion of the $22.50?—No.

Do you know if To Fuk was present when the money was offered?—We were there together—he was two paces from me, and the others were there also.

Did you know the defendant before that date?—No.

You know of a certain Shing Sam restaurant in Wellington Street?—No.

Didn't you and the rest of your brothers, who wanted this money to be increased to 15 cents for each space used by these hawkers?—No.

And didn't the defendant say he could only collect 10 cents?—No.

You refused and insisted on 10 cents?—No.

To Fuk, another of the constables concerned then gave evidence in corroboration of the previous witness' testimony.

Hawkers' Evidence.

Chan Chun, licensed hawker, said that on October 30 he was in Jubilee Street and saw the defendant following the last two witnesses. Chan Fuk came up to him and asked him for 10 cents saying, "If you give me 10 cents you will not be driven away."

His Worship: But what made you give 10 cents to defendant?—Because he said he was collecting money for the constables.

Witness then said that he paid 10 cents in the morning and 10 cents for the afternoon. Unless this payment was made, licensed hawkers were not allowed to squat in Jubilee Street.

Fok San, another licensed hawker said that Chan Fuk collected 50 cents from him in Jervois Street, and told him that it was for the two constables. Defendant told witness that if he did not subscribe the money to the constables he would be arrested.

Further evidence of a similar nature was submitted by Chan Kai, who said he gave money to the defendant when he brought the two constables to his stall. He also heard the constables tell the defendant to collect the money.

"From October 30 to November 1, the defendant came to my stall between 6 and 7 every morning, and collected 10 cents for the morning and 10 cents for the afternoon. The constables were present on every occasion."

"Charge Hardly Fits Facts."

His Worship then addressed Inspector Reynolds and said, "This charge hardly fits the facts; the evidence we have got is just the reverse."

Inspector Reynolds admitted that the witnesses had altered the evidence they had supplied to him in framing the charge against the defendant.

Mr. d'Almada: These men should be kept sight of, and the constables brought before them on their evidence.

His Worship: This conduct is reprehensible. It is quite clear that these people have altered the evidence they gave to the police. The charge should probably be against the constables.

The Magistrate then intimated that he did propose to convict on the present charge, but remanded the case until 10 a.m. on Monday.

To Inspector Reynolds: I think you ought to have a copy of my evidence to allow you to consider what steps you will take.

At the local Y's Men's Club tiffin, on Thursday, the 17th instant, Rev. E. L. Allen spoke on "Idols of the Cave." There were nearly 40 members and guests present. Dr. Allen took his subject from Plato's "Republic" and emphasized the importance of the welfare, contentment, and happiness of men and women individually. He mentioned that industrial progress did not necessarily make people happy but, instead, created more unemployment due to more efficient machinery.

He quoted some authorities who predicted that even if Great Britain and the United States should return to the same level of prosperity as that of 1929, the problem of unemployment would still remain unsolved.

Dr. Allen also emphasized the importance of returning to the soil and told his audience that the happiest people were those of "Deildark and the Scandinavian countries." They were better housed, better clothed, better educated and more contented than any other people.

Prolonged applause followed the conclusion of the speech, and Dr. E. C. H. Lim, on behalf of the Club, thanked Dr. Allen. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Tan Eng Hooi, President of the Club.

GUARDED OPTIMISM

No more thankless task confronts the statesman or prominent industrialist than that of delivering a speech in which reference has to be made to the Economic Depression. The easy course is to say, with an impressiveness that ill conceals inner misgivings, that there are signs of improvement, that we have seen the worst, and that while recovery will be slow at first it will none the less be steady; and meanwhile it is the duty of every individual to assist the process. Even if the speaker be sincere he must all the time be anxious lest some rugged pessimist tear this threadbare optimism in pieces, using as his weapon the harsh evidences of facts and figures that can generally be produced to make what is bad look far worse. Obviously no responsible public man dare shake a wavering confidence by dwelling upon the dark side of the situation, but while the World is in its present predicament the alternatives to the public speaker are not attractive. Optimism is as helpful as drum taking—no harm and some good if the trouble be short-lived! But unfortunately the Depression has not been short-lived. Silence, on the other hand, is termed "obstinate and ominous," and no prominent statesman dare resort to this desperate expedient. British statesmen, particularly the Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Neville Chamberlain, have developed a style of guarded optimism and encouragement, without promising too much. They have set the tone to public utterances and as far as can be judged real help has been given by the careful speeches of these, and other responsible persons.

For those reasons it is possible to attach significance to the more optimistic notes sounded of late, and not to dismiss them as soothing noises. For instance, Mr. NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN speaking at Birmingham as long ago as October 23, said:—

"I see indications that there are the beginnings of more solid prospects of recovery than at any time since the present Government came into office. Already the rising tide of unemployment has been arrested, and I should not be surprised if we were to see before many weeks have passed that it had begun to set in the opposite direction."

Another very different, but by no means unimportant, opinion was that of Sir WOODMAN BURBIDGE, chairman of Harrods, who went so far as to say:—

"Trade in this country is most satisfactory compared with conditions in other countries, and the spending power of the people is wonderful considering present day financial difficulties. I do feel that we have to-day got over our worst time. I am hoping that soon prices will stabilise with a slight tendency towards increase."

Sir WALTER RUNCIMAN, on the other hand, was more cautious. After an appeal to the ship building industry to be ready for the turn of the economic tide he added somewhat lamely: "Although from my position as President of the Board of Trade I do not see signs of an immediate recovery, I am absolutely certain that recovery will come."

Mr. BALDWIN, however, as lately as November 9th, was decidedly more hopeful, with however, the implied reservation that international good will was essential.

Speaking at the Lord Mayor's banquet in London the Conservative leader said:—"The auspicious proceedings at Lausanne and Ottawa made one trust that the great forthcoming world economic conference would find a solution to world problems." He expressed the firm conviction that failure at Ottawa would have prejudiced the success of the world conference and that failure of the world conference would mean disaster.

All eyes now turn to America. There, President Hoover, who will guide the destinies of his country for another six months said, with regard to the key problem of war debts that while he opposed any form of cancellation, "We should be receptive to proposals from our debtors of tangible compensation in other forms than the direct payment of cash, in the expansion of markets for the products of our labour and our farms." It is quite certain that with unemployment at its present figure the United States would not demand payment in dumped masses of manufactured goods or even raw materials—miners and land workers would have a say there. The alternative is some form of trade agreement, or in other words if not a breach in the tariff walls, at least a cautious and occasional opening of the gate. Mr. ANDREW MEZLON, told Manchester merchants that his countrymen hoped to build prosperity behind tariff walls, and he wished the British Empire luck in the same task, and was congratulatory about Ottawa. Mr. MEZLON is a very charming man, but hard as granite. It may be that now he sees that he can no longer get something for nothing out of England at question of mutual concessions may arise. Protection at home and the success of the Ottawa Conference have given, we all trust, real cause for optimism in Great Britain and throughout the Empire.

Secret of Lipton's Success.

Sir Thomas Lipton, has revealed many of the secrets of his success to the world in his autobiography. He thanks Prime Minister William E. Gladstone for his right start. He heard the Liberal Prime Minister declare: "Advertising is to business what steam is to machinery—the sole propelling power. Nothing except the mint can make money without advertising!" Sir Thomas became Britain's greatest advertiser. He landed every major prize he went after—except the America's cup.

This is one of the many bright stories in Sir James Crichton-Brown's new book, "The Doctor's Afterthoughts" (Denn). Another is:—

"An Irish law officer said that when he saw the jury hanging about the court waiting to be called he told them that they had better get

A New Amusement!

Train passengers for the first time in Britain have been able to travel for the express purpose of enjoying the scenery. Carriages specially fitted with large plate-glass windows and slow-running trains at unusually low fares have allowed travellers to appreciate woodland, moorland, and the rugged Yorkshire seacoast.

A Pathetic Figure.

One of the most pathetic figures to be seen in England was the representative of the Pravda, who had been specially detailed to watch the Conservative Conference at Blackpool, presumably in the hope of finding evidence of anti-Russian propaganda.

This individual conscientiously attended meeting after meeting, listened to endless speeches, and zealously made note of innumerable resolutions—and all in vain. With the exception of Commander Locker-Lampson's motion, the Conservatives appeared to be sublimely unconscious even of the existence of Soviet Russia; and at the end of the Conference he was apparently no wiser than he was before it began.

Mr. Churchill in a New Role.

Already soldier, statesman, author, painter and bricklayer, Mr. Churchill has been nominated by the kindly printer to a new rôle. The member for Epping has written a foreword to a recently published and very excellent book relating the adventures of a Belgian woman spy. His name adorns the first page of the volume, and underneath it appear the imposing symbols "P.C., C.A., M.P." How proud Lord Randolph would have been of his chartered accountant son—he who found in the decimal point the bane of a Chancellor's life, and who confessed ruefully that he "never knew the meaning of those dam'd dots." The C.H. which Mr. Churchill really does possess signifies something very different.

"Copyright Reserved."

Wide Continental experience, finance, economics, accounts, factory equipment, staff management, rapid shorthand typist, some advertising sales experience. Has scrubbed floors and dined with millionaires. Write offers—novelists refrain. It is a wise man who reserves his copyright to his own identity."

Doctors as Inventors.

The recent attack on the British Medical Association by Sir Ernest Graham Little, M.P., for its refusal to allow practitioners to make profits out of their discoveries recalls the case of Dr. Frank Neebfield, the discoverer of that remarkable preparation Vitalexin, and, incidentally, of the chlorine process of disinfecting water. Vitalexin was placed on the market as a commercial product, the secret of the preparation being maintained, and for this offence its discoverer was struck off the rolls. An Italian doctor claims to have produced a similar rejuvenating "elixir," and it will be interesting to see what happens to him.

Half Way to Prohibition.

The word prohibition is seldom heard in the British Isles. A small band of total abstainers carries on constant propaganda against alcoholic drinks, but it is not often argued that the British people should be made sober by Act of Parliament, for, without any coercive legislation, during recent years the British nation has become much more sober. The licensing statistics show that, except during 1918, when abnormal restrictions due to the war were drastically enforced, the total of convictions for drunkenness during 1931 was the lowest on record. Compared with the pre-war figure of 189,000 there was a decrease last year of no less than 75 per cent. The most interesting local comparison is for Liverpool: In 1913 the number of convictions was 14,900; in 1931 it had fallen to 2,161.

Looking Back 25 Years.

A very interesting ceremony was performed on November 14 on the stage in the large hall at Kowloon Dock, in connection with the drama "Roy-Boy" produced there some time ago. Mr. Graham, acting manager, and Hon. Vice-President of the Kowloon Dock A.D.C. presented three juvenile members of the A.D.C. with gold brooches and scarves as a token of appreciation of that manner in which they had acquitted themselves in the play at Kowloon Dock. Mr. Graham said that so far as their efforts were concerned he was more than satisfied and trusted that in the future whenever they attempted any part in theatricals that they would acquire themselves in the same creditable manner. The brooches and pins were specially made for the occasion, and are in the form of the emblem of Scotland surrounded with the oak leaf. After the presentation the company sang "He's a jolly good fellow." It may be said here that although Mr. Graham has not taken any active part in the play, he has shown an interest and anxiety for its welfare that seldom comes from an hon. member of any society.—Hong Kong Daily Press, November 15, 1907.

Looking Back 50 Years.

The proceedings at the annual meeting of the shareholders in and subscribers to the City Hall held on Tuesday were very brief, the adoption of the report and accounts being the only business, introduced by a brief speech from the Chairman. The state of the finances of this institution is ever very satisfactory, its sources of income being slender and precarious, and the outlay for repairs to the building always setting up to a considerable sum. The withdrawal of the Government grant by Sir John Pope Hennessy has still further diminished the revenue of the City Hall. This measure one of the most unjustifiable ever committed even by the most tyrannical Governor—Hong Kong—was ever cursed with, and was sanctioned by the Secretary of State owing to misrepresentation, and we are now without hope that the next Head of the Executive may recognise the injustice and meanness of the course pursued by his predecessor—a course which there is every reason to believe was dictated purely by malice.—Hong Kong Daily Press, November 16, 1892.

BRITISH DISARMAMENT PROPOSALS

GERMANY'S CLAIM FOR EQUALITY UPHELD

SIR JOHN SIMON'S ABLE SPEECH TO DISARMAMENT BUREAU

COMPLETE RECOGNITION THAT GERMANY IS ENTITLED TO EQUALITY OF TREATMENT REGARDING ARMAMENTS WAS FULLY GIVEN BY SIR JOHN SIMON IN HIS SPEECH ON DISARMAMENT TO THE DISARMAMENT BUREAU TO-DAY.

FRENCH PROPOSALS TOO ELABORATE

GENEVA, November 17.

Sir John Simon said that the French proposals were of so elaborate and closely articulated character as to make comment at short notice not only imprudent but impossible.

Germany's legal right to equality is based:

Firstly, on the Treaty of Versailles, a binding document which cannot be set aside by unilateral action.

Secondly, the preamble of Part V. of the Treaty and Clemenceau's contemporaneous explanation on behalf of the Allies will unquestionably be involved. I understand that the disarmament imposed on Germany was intended as a forerunner of a substantial measure for general disarmament.

Thirdly, while he was far from under-rating the extent of unilateral disarmament achieved by certain States since the Armistice, the fact remains that while Germany continues to be under perpetual restriction, other nations are not yet under mutual contractual obligation to limit their armaments, save for the exceptionally important area covered by the Naval Treaties of Washington and London. Also other nations are still permitted those weapons of war which are prohibited by treaty to Germany.

Fourthly, Germany is a full member of the League of Nations and has an indisputable right to take her place as an equal.

Question of Equality.

Sir John Simon continued that the best means of achieving equality were:

(1) All European States should join in a solemn affirmation that they will not, under any circumstances, attempt to resolve any present or future difficulties by a resort to force.

(2) Limitation of Germany's armaments should be contained in the same disarmament convention as that defining the limitation of armaments of others.

(3) Newly expressed limitation in the case of Germany should last the same period and be subject to the same methods of revision as those of others.

Fourthly, with regard to the question of limit of armament, if an equality status is conceded, then the principle of qualitative disarmament must be acknowledged and the British Government should declare its willingness in co-operation with other members of the Disarmament Conference, to see this principle embodied in any new convention.

In the matter of effectives we are prepared to accept the Hoover proposal as a basis for discussion.

First Object of Conference.

Sir John Simon said that the first object of the Disarmament Conference was to obtain the maximum quantitative disarmament that can be generally agreed on, and not to authorize in the name of equality an increase in armed strength, and secondly, that a full practical realization of the principles of equality cannot be achieved immediately, but can be achieved as it is seen that the peace of the world has been made more secure by taking the first step.

Qualitative Disarmament Conference.

Sir John Simon said that the immediate task of the Disarmament Conference is to settle an actual programme, the first stage, if possible, to establish main outlines. The second stage in order that nations may adjust their programmes thereto. In the interval the British Government considered that the following methods might be applied to the first stage; firstly, "a qualitative disarmament conference." The British Government is at present engaged in seeking an agreement with the leading naval Powers for a substantial reduction in the size of guns, tonnage of capital ships and the whole total of naval tonnage, and the demands that Germany should be permitted to build ships of a type similar to that on which the great naval Powers finally agree.

10,000 Tons Limit a Failure.

Exhaustive investigation has shown that the arbitrary figure of ten thousand tons as the limit for the capital ship would fail to be generally accepted. Any construction undertaken by Germany shall (subject to minor adjustments) not increase the total tonnage in any category to which her navy is at present restricted.

Thirdly, the Government is willing to limit cruisers to vessels of seven thousand tons with six-inch guns.

Abolishment of the Submarine.

Fourthly, the Government have repeatedly urged that the submarine be wholly abolished, and regard this as one of the greatest possible contributions to disarmament and world peace, and also the best way of meeting Germany's claim for equality in arms in regard to this weapon.

Tanks.

With regard to tanks, the British Government entirely agreed with the United States' proposals, specifically that offensive weapons should be prohibited but that the modern tank of lighter type could not be regarded as offensive and its universal prohibition would inevitably involve an increase in the United Kingdom's man-power. The Government, therefore, proposed that all tanks of a given weight should be abolished with a view to prohibiting those of an offensive character.

It is impossible to deny that Germany in principle has a right to possess a limited number of such weapons, but the question whether it should be in practice depends on the consideration of the purposes to be served by each national army which should await the Geneva discussions in which Germany will participate.

Mobile Land Guns.

In regard to large mobile land guns, the obvious way according to the German equality treatment, at the same time greatly advancing disarmament, was to press for a general reduction to a maximum calibre of 105 millimetres permitted to Germany under the Peace Treaty. This maximum calibre, if fixed by international convention, would secure that any replacement or new construction should fall within this limit.

Air Armament.

The following are points in the British air armament proposals:

(1) An immediate reduction of air forces of the leading Powers to the level of those of the United Kingdom.

(2) A cut of 33 per cent. all round on air-forces of the world, which would thus be reduced, the United Kingdom included.

(3) Limitation of the unladen weight of military aircraft to the lowest figure on which a general agreement can be obtained.

Sir John Simon referred to, and emphasized on, the tenor of Mr. Baldwin's speech in the House of Commons in which he pointed out the reality of the air armament danger threatening the present and future civilisation, and the impossibility of warding off the danger by half-hearted steps. Sir John said that the claim for world-wide abolition of all bombing machines and a guarantee of final abolition of bombing was not feasible as the machines could be adapted, but the British Government is anxious to co-operate with other air Powers to examine the practicability of entire abolition, by international agreement, of military and naval machines and bombing by a combined effective international control of civil aviation. Meanwhile it is not unreasonable for Germany to refrain from claiming to possess military and naval air-craft.

PROROGATION OF PARLIAMENT

H.M. THE KING REVIEWS FOREIGN AFFAIRS

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.

ONLY references to purely foreign affairs were made in the King's Speech at the prorogation of Parliament. They deal with the admission of Iraq to the membership of the League, thereby marking a successful issue to the policy which British Governments have consistently pursued during the last twelve years, and to the success of the collaborative efforts of governments at the Lausanne conference devising conditions for a lasting settlement of the German reparations question.

Deep gratification is expressed at the successful conclusion of the Ottawa Conference. "I trust it will add strength to the ties between my peoples and stimulate Imperial trade."

Regret is expressed that despite efforts certain questions between the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State have not yet found capable adjustment. Mention is made of the serious barrier to progress in dealing with the Indian Constitution problem being removed by the Government declaration, subject to communal representation.

The Speech also refers to the re-establishment of a balance between income and expenditure in national finances, in consequence of the readiness of the community to make all the necessary sacrifices as a result of last autumn's crisis. Reference is also made to the recent, completely successful, loan conversion operations. The adverse balance of trade checked by the Import Duties Act was accompanied by a substantial addition to revenue and a reasonable protection of British industry. Approbation is made by a number of foreign countries with a view to negotiation of trade agreements were welcomed. The new session of Parliament begins on November 22.

MORE DRASTIC CUTS AT HOME

SAVING OF £100,000,000 URGED

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.

A SENSATION has been created by the release of the report of the House of Commons private members' economy committee, urging economy cuts in state and local expenditure to achieve an estimated saving of over £100,000,000 annually.

Recommendations in the Report include the abolition of the Ministry of Transport; the abolition of housing subsidies; the abolition of the Road Fund, and the winding-up of the Department of Overseas Trade.

The Committee also recommends: Longer Hours of work in the Civil Service.

A further Reduction in the Salaries of the Staff.

The publication of the Report caused a storm of protest from Conservative members of the House of Commons at Westminster last night on the grounds that the Report has been published before it has been considered by a full committee of the House of Commons.

KICKS AND HA'PENCE

SIR JOHN SIMON ON GREAT BRITAIN'S SHARE

Sir John Simon was the principal guest at the traditional ceremonial opening of the "pudding season" at the Chester Cheese in Fleet Street, and occupied the seat which is historically associated with Dr. Johnson. Mr. H. J. Wortham, the manager, was in the chair.

Replying to the toast of his health, which was proposed by Admiral Mark Kerr, Sir John Simon said that if the spirit of Dr. Johnson was among them they would be prepared to face difficult times with a stout heart. The eighteenth century must have been an uncomfortable time in which to live, but it was in the best sense a time when our country was inspired by patriotism.

We had lost as compared with old times, perhaps, the full power which Great Britain could display in the contests in the world of physical force, but the influence of this country in the councils of the world was greater than it had ever been before. One had only to go to Geneva to realize how people were watching to see what position this country would take up. Great Britain got most of the dirty work to do; we got more than our share of the kicks and less than our share of the credit.

He would not say a word in criticism of his old colleagues who (Continued at foot of next column)

GERMAN CABINET TO RESIGN

PAPEN REALISES HIS POSITION IS HOPELESS

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

BERLIN, Nov. 17.

IT is expected that von Papen will resign today. The Chancellor realises the hopelessness of his position as only the German Nationals and the People's Party are willing to consider von Papen's proposal to form a national concentration government as President von Hindenburg desires. The Nazis and Socialists are adamant, while the Centre are unwilling to collaborate. The future outlook is very dark and many are of the opinion that Schleicher will be appointed Chancellor, while Gessler is also mentioned. Everything depends on President von Hindenburg, who will undoubtedly take the course which he considers right for Germany.

Well-informed people dismiss the rumours that the Reichstag will again be dissolved and a military dictatorship constituted, owing to Hindenburg's determination to keep the oath of the Constitution.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.

It is reported that von Papen will tender the Cabinet's resignation to Pres. von Hindenburg to-morrow.

Reports of Deciding Meeting.

BERLIN, Nov. 17. It is freely reported that an important meeting of the von Papen Cabinet was held last night to decide whether or not to resign. No confirmation of the report has been obtainable up to the present.

PRINCE OF WALES VISITS BELFAST

LARGE CROWDS LINE STREETS

[REUTER AND BRITISH WIRELESS.]

LONDON, Nov. 16.

THE first visit of the Prince of Wales to Northern Ireland was marked by almost unprecedented scenes of fervour.

Along the four-mile route through Belfast from the quay to the Grosvenor Hotel, great crowds lined the streets and gave a wildly enthusiastic greeting to the Prince as he drove to perform the opening ceremony of the new Parliament Building.

Although he had requested that economy be practised by the civil authorities on street decorations, private citizens had decked their houses with flags and streamers all over the city.

Rain fell heavily during the procession but the Prince insisted on driving in an open car.

Awaiting the Prince in the great hall at Stormont were the Northern Ireland Cabinet and a host of distinguished Irishmen.

The opening ceremony was performed by the Prince on behalf of the King, from whom he delivered a message of greeting. The Prince said it was his father's earnest prayer that they should meet the difficulties confronting the whole world as well as their own special problems with the courage and tenacity, the loyalty and devotion which had made Northern Irishmen famous in the annals of the British Empire.

The Prince afterwards proceeded through cheering crowds to the City Hall where an address of welcome was delivered.

His visit to Ulster will extend over three days and will include a tour of representative industries.

thought they could properly leave the Government at this moment. He could not take the view which they took because, while it was true that our exertions had saved us from disaster, no one who had any knowledge at all of the present condition of the world could regard our country as being in a position of such security as to justify any man in relinquishing his responsibility in its responsibility he was called.

INDIAN ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE

DELEGATES MEET IN HOUSE OF LORDS

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.

THE Indian Round Table Conference opened in the Conference Chamber of the House of Lords committee rooms. The number of both British and Indian delegates is far fewer than on previous occasions. The proceedings will be private, but it is understood that Mr. R. MacDonald in his opening statement reviewed the work of previous conferences, also the British Government's proposals.

BURMA ELECTION SURPRISE

SEPARATIST CANDIDATES DEFEATED

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

RANGOON, Nov. 17.

THE electorate sprang a profound surprise upon official circles in the elections to the Legislative Council.

The main issue between the candidates was whether or not Burma should be separated from India. The separation was recommended at the meeting of the Burma Round Table Conference and it was thought that the majority of the people of Burma were supporters of the separatist movement.

The anti-separatists, however, obtained forty-one seats and the Separatists only 23. Neutrals were elected to nine seats, while two results are still outstanding. In one of these, all the candidates are anti-separatists.

Thus the Legislative Councillors who are opposed to separation will have a complete majority of contested seats.

It is still hoped by the Separatists, however, that a change of view will prevail before the meeting of the Council, in which there are also twenty-three nominated and ex-officio members.

Mistaken Impression.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, Nov. 16.

Answering a Commons question regarding the Burmese elections the Secretary for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, said the position was not yet clear, but he had good reason to believe that many of those who voted for the anti-separatist candidates were still under the mistaken impression that it was open to Burma to enter the Indian Federation on terms that would enable her to leave it when she wished.

The Prime Minister indicated on January 12, and he himself stated in sufficiently plain terms on June 27, that this was not a contingency which the Government were prepared to contemplate.

Alternatives.

The alternatives before Burma were on the one hand separation from India in the immediate future and the pursuit of her own political destiny on the basis of the constitution outlined by the Prime Minister and on the other, entry into the Indian Federation, in which case she would remain a province of India and would be treated in exactly the same way as any other province and would have no means at her disposal for withdrawing from the Federation.

CUBAN HURRICANE DISASTER

KING'S MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, Nov. 16.

THE President of Cuba, who the recent hurricane wrecked the town of Santa Cruz, del Sur, caused the death of probably two thousand people, has received the following telegram of sympathy from the King:—"I am greatly grieved, Monsieur le President, to learn of the great loss of life and damage to property which resulted from the cyclone and hasten to send you my very deep sympathy."

Replying, President Gerardo Machado expressed himself as deeply grateful for the expression of sympathy.

SINO-JAPANESE DISPUTE

DISCUSSED BY FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

NANKING, Nov. 17.

THE Foreign Relations Committee held an important meeting this afternoon to discuss the proposal for the constitution of an international committee to help the League to solve the Manchurian question, but the result of the meeting is being kept a strict secret. However, it is now freely reported that in principle China is not disinclined towards the proposal. Neither official confirmation nor denial has been evoked by such reports. Meanwhile, it is emphasised in Chinese circles that the new move from Geneva in the event of fruition should be undertaken with a view to accelerating rather than prolonging a settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict, and should in no way prejudice the principle of recognition of Chinese territorial administrative integrity, which Chinese circles claim is upheld by the Lytton Report.

EVOLUTION OF BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

EXHIBITION AT SOUTH KENSINGTON

An exhibition of Children's Books was held last month in the North Court of the Victoria and Albert Museum. Publishers associated with the National Book Council (which is promoting a "Boys and Girls Book Week" next month) have lent a wide selection of modern children's books. The side-cases and walls are used for the display of over 800 illustrated English books for children, published between the late seventeenth century and 1914.

The historical display has as its nucleus books from the Museum's own library, but these are reinforced by a number of loans from private owners. Mr. C. T. Owen displays a half-dozen examples from the collection of horn-books, a mid-sixteenth century example in silver is followed by a late seventeenth or early eighteenth-century horn-book bearing the crest of the Tally, Chancellors' Company (probably from one of the schools of the guild), while another and larger example is said to have been used to teach the children of the first Duke of Marlborough. With Comenius's "Visible World" (1657) the exhibition of printed books proper begins, and there are several examples from the first half of the eighteenth century, of which the earliest are a Queen Anne spelling-book and catechism, and a serialized version of "Jack the Giant-Killer," printed at Nottingham for the "Running Stationers" or chapmen. About 1740 there was evidently a fashion for inserting engravings in manuscript books for children; an example is inscribed "George William Johnson, his book; Printed and bound by his mamma."

The children of the late eighteenth century were treated, upon the whole, playfully by authors and illustrators, and the "History of Little Goody Two-shoes," from the original manuscript in the Vatican at Rome, with "cuts by Michel Angelo," is to be seen with a translation of Perrault's fairy tales. Scripture stories, however, are made the basis of more serious reading for the young, and there is a bilingual "primer for the use of the Mohawk children" which must be of great rarity. A larger proportion, perhaps, of the early nineteenth century exhibits are intended, like the poems of Adelaide O'Keefe, "to improve the mind of youth and allure it to virtue," but the visitor will notice two entirely different tendencies, one in the direction of lightness and fantasy (for instance, "William Roscoe's 'The Butterfly Ball'") and the other towards games and puzzles, sometimes with detachable figures for the children to play with.

Living or very recent illustrators are more widely represented in the books themselves than in originals. One special case shows the evolution of book-illustration and of book-production in general; successive editions of Aesop are shown illustrated by Bewick, Tenniel, Charles Bennett, Randolph Childecott, and a half-dozen of their rivals. The exhibition will be open to the public.

AMY REACHES BENGUELLA

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

BENGUELLA, Nov. 17.

MRS. AMY MOLLISON, who is endeavouring to set up a record flight from Croydon to Cape Town, arrived here to-day at 7.15 a.m.

S.S. FOOCHING ABANDONED

SPLENDID RESCUE WORK BY CHINESE VESSEL

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 17.

DISASTER overtook the S.S. Fooching as she was proceeding from Shanghai to Chuenkow, in Fukien, with a cargo of flour and piece-goods last night.

When some little distance beyond Woosung, a fire was noticed aboard the craft, and S.O.S. messages were sent out, but the flames spread rapidly, despite the efforts of the crew, and the Russian master, Captain Baoh-mann finally decided to beach her on the coast in order to prevent her from becoming a total loss.

Suikong's Good Work.

In the meantime, another Chinese ship, the S.S. Suikong, on her way to Hankow from Shanghai, picked up the Fooching's S.O.S. signals, changed her course and proceeded at full speed to the rescue.

She arrived at the critical moment, put out her lifeboats and took off all the passengers and crew of the Fooching and brought them to Shanghai.

The Fooching is a vessel of about 1,500 tons.

ELIAS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

EARL RUSSELL STANDS SURETY

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 16.

SURPRISE followed upon surprise in the Bow Street Police Court to-day when Sidney Job Elias, chairman of the National Unemployed Workers Movement, was committed for trial.

He is charged with inciting W. A. L. Hannington, leader of the Unemployed Marchers, and a named Llewellyn to cause public discontent and disturbances against the police.

After some discussion between the legal representatives and the Magistrate, the release of Elias on bail was permitted.

Earl Russell's Offer.

The first surprise came when Earl Russell (better known as the Hon. Bertrand Russell) stepped forward and declared his willingness to stand surety for Elias in the sum of £500.

The Magistrate required a second surety in the same sum, whereupon a young, hairless woman, with bobbed auburn hair, stepped forward and said she was prepared to stand surety. She gave her name as Mrs. Helen Allan.

It is alleged against Elias that he has been working on behalf of the Third International to stir up strife in Britain.

Russian Intrigue.

He was in Russia in September and the police allege that they seized a letter on November 1, signed "Sid" when they raided Great Russell Street premises. The letter carried a Moscow dateline, and proposed dealing with the "police terror" in Liverpool and Birkbeard and emphasized the necessity of street agitation. The police allege that the letter is in the handwriting of Elias.

CANTON NAVY TO PURCHASE FOUR GUNBOATS

TO COST $400,000

Admiral Chang Chi Ying, in reorganizing the Canton Navy, has ordered the sale of old gunboats, the proceeds of which will be used for the purchase of new craft. The Bopik, Lungshang, King-sun, Kwangtung, Peikiang, Ho-keung, Kitar, and other obsolete vessels will be sold. The Canton Government proposes to buy four new gunboats which will cost approximately $400,000.

CRICKET NOTES

CRAIGENGOWER FAIL TO FORCE A VICTORY

There was a great deal of Cricket played over the last week-end and the weather could not have proved more delightful. Unfortunately a good many Clubs do not possess an "independent and adequate" water supply and the question of watering the wicket is going to be an awkward one unless we can get some rain, for choice at night or in mid-week! I have already dealt with the two-day match between the Hong Kong C.C. and K.C.C., and I will deal first with the First League match between Craigen-gower and the Army.

Bat Beats Ball.

Thanks to some stout batting on the part of some batsmen of my own Club, playing on the neighbouring ground, I was able to see quite a bit of the winning of the Army match on their ground, where the C.C.C. had first innings. They did not start too auspiciously, as, after Lim had scored a single, Patterson was run out. The score was, I believe, fourteen of which the other thirteen were all extras which came in one over. Lim and Zimmerman went quickly for a time and then as they mastered the attack runs began to come thick and fast. Mirhouse, the Army captain, was on the sick list, and Anstruther captained the side. Garthwaite had a good spell but the batting did not suit his fast-medium deliveries, and he seemed to bowl more overpitched balls than were healthy against two forcing batsmen. Munson has not found his length yet and it was not until Pto. Dewey went on that the wickets started to fall, though, of course, at this time it was a question of "get runs or get out" for Craigen-gower. Zimmerman's fifty-seven was a fine forcing innings and Lim, the two Leas and Omar made useful contributions.

Good Army Batting.

The Army had to get a hundred and seventy in about an hour and three quarters, a very heavy task. They never really looked like losing although early on had a catch taken, in the slips it might have been a different question. As it was Stocker and Trout gave them an excellent start and Garthwaite, going in second wicket down, remained undefeated. Whiteway-Wilkinson was getting going when he was rather untuckily out as he jumped out to drive and missed the ball. Patterson failed to gather it but kicked it on to the wicket as it dropped, and the batsman was stumped. When stumps were drawn they had a hundred and twenty-six for six wickets. By the way, C.C.C. were able after all to field a better team than they expected, as Gibbins was the only notable absentee from the side besides Hubbard.

Friendly.

The Indians were at home to the Civil Service, but had not small available to keep wicket for them. He had split his hand the week before and only managed to last out that game by sheer pluck. Pereira did not bowl at top pace when he opened and Sayer and Richardson after a quiet start settled down to control the attack, and sent the hundred up before being separated. Richardson, however, had been badly dropped in the deep, and altogether the I.R.C. fielding fell far below their usual standard. If they had fielded like that in their League match it might have been another story! The later C.S. batsmen hit out a bit, and runs came very fast. The declaration was made at about ten past four, with the score at a hundred and ninety-six for seven wickets. The I.R.C. never looked like getting beaten, although they were without A. A. Rumjahn. S. A. Ismail did not stay long, but A. H. Rumjahn batted very nicely though he might have been taken in the slips off Hamilton, when he had about twenty. Sufiad was useful, if a little unpolished, while A. H. Madar played very nice cricket against some rather tired bowling. The match was drawn.

On the Navy Ground.

I am not quite sure if it was a Navy first or an "A" eleven which beat the Twenty-fourth Regiment at King's Park. Mid. Yates bowled very well and made a further trial but I gather he does not go first even for his own ship's team. As far as I can see the Navy can put out at least two eleven of more or less equal strength provided they dig out everyone. Lt. Comdr. R. J. Shaw has not been out yet, as he has had some sort of the Stonecutters Range, but I presume we shall see him again. To resume, the Navy beat the soldiers. I was rather surprised to find that Wales and Ronan were not in the Army side but I fancy they are

INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL

ENGLAND AND WALES DRAW

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 16.

BEFORE a crowd of 20,000 and in ideal weather, Wales visited Wrexham to-day and played England to a goalless draw in an International Football match.

CLUB "A" v. RECREIO

The following will represent the Club "A" Team versus the Club de Recreio at King's Park on Friday, November 18, at 3 p.m.:-

Moss, Duncan, Henry, Rees, Dale, Komor, Fox, Wade, McIntyre, Davies, Price.

experimenting a bit. The latter I begin to think is a more deadly bowler in the Second than in the First League.

The Sunday Match.

It was most unfortunate that the Civil Service were at such a weak level on Sunday last when they were at home to a very useful eleven of Volunteers. Richardson had none too strong a side out to start with, and he was let down in several places at the last minute. The result was that he was the only real bat on the side, and he did not happen to come off. Eight wickets were down for forty odd and nine for fifty-three, but Hamilton who had started shakily proceeded to demonstrate that fours can be scored from the edge of the bat as well as from the middle, while Reed kept a perfectly straight but and defended excellently. The total reached eighty. The Volunteers might not have had such a walk over if Munro had been taken off a simple chance at forward short leg, and Potter stumped both in one over from Reed early on. As it was Munro hit very hard—he will be a very useful man if he takes up the game regularly as he has great height and is very powerful, and obviously has been very well coached. I trust he will not fall between the two stools of Cricket and Rugby as several of our younger athletes seem to be doing. The Volunteers won easily but it was a very pleasant and cheerful game and no one bothered much about the decision. The best also—but that is another story.

To-morrow's Games.

There are two League Matches for decision to-morrow. The Craigen-gower Club are at home to the Civil Service and to my mind it is a pure toss up who wins, but I think there will be a decision. It is about time some of the later C.S.C. bats got going—even the most elderly but one got going a few days ago—while I am not sure the C.C.C. bowling is so strong after Omar and Robert Lee. I shall hope to give a fairly full account of it in my notes next week.

The Club have a very strong side out against the Navy and should beat them unless Robert Shaw gets going. The match is most interesting—especially to the older of us—as T. A. Pearce is playing his first innings on the Club ground for a good number of years. I am keen to see if our light, which has put so many good cricketers off here at first will upset a first class batsman. He has a nice easy action, somewhat reminiscent of T. E. Pearce's but he bowls faster than his Father did when I recall his bowling. T.A. has quite a bit of spin from his off, and rather a puzzling flight.

According to the card the I.R.C. are at home to the K.C.C. in a friendly and a battle of giants should result. I don't pretend to suggest any result but that of a draw. By the way, I fear the K.C.C. Secretary has ceased to love me this season as I haven't had their card. But perhaps he is keeping it to send over when he has some of that excellent mustard and cream to send along with it. Happy thoughts!—Likewise, Verb. Sap.

F.A. CUP

REVISED DRAW FOR 1ST ROUND PROPER

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 16.

EVEN extra time failed to prove sufficient for Altrincham and St. Albans to settle their fourth qualifying round of the Football Association cup to-day, the game resulting in a draw of three goals each.

Gainsborough, however, succeeded in vanquishing Gresley Rovers, netting four times to their opponents twice.

The revised draw for the first round proper of the F.A. Cup to be played off on November 26 now reads:

Workington v. Scunthorpe. Accrington v. Hereford. Darlington v. Bolton. Halifax v. Darwen. Southport v. Nelson. Carlisle v. Denaby. Chester v. Rotherham. Crewe v. Crooktown. York v. Scarborough. Marine (Liverpool) v. Hartlepool. Doncaster v. Gainsborough. Rochdale v. Stockport. Wrexham v. Spennymoor. Barrow v. Gateshead. Tranmere v. New Brighton. St. Albans v. Altrincham.

Wallasey v. Mansfield. Darford v. Yeovil and Petters. Cardiff v. Bristol Rovers. Northampton v. Lloyds (Sittingbourne).

Bristol City v. Romford. Newport v. Ilford. Street v. Merthyr Tydfil v. Queen's Park Rangers.

Margate v. Rugeley. Torquay v. Bournemouth. Southend v. Exeter. Guildford v. Coventry. Folkestone v. Norwich. Orient v. Aldershot. Swindon v. Dulwich Hamlet. Palace v. Brighton. Gillingham v. Wycombe Wanderers. Reading v. Brentford. Luton v. Kingstonian.

MR. H. M. MCTAVISH GOING HOME

VALUABLE MEMBER OF FOOTBALL CLUB

The Hong Kong Football Club will be losing one of their most valued supporters in H. M. McTavish who will be going home in about three weeks' time in the s.s. Chmorin. Mr. McTavish is Secretary of the Hong Kong Football Club and his connection with the Club goes back to 1914.

Mr. McTavish began as an "ordinary player" but before long was Captain of the Hong Kong Football Club, and when his playing days were over he took over the secretarial work and made a great success of it. He is a member of the Council of the Football Association. It is probable that the secretarial duties will be carried on, after Mr. McTavish's departure, by Mr. W. Pryde.

H.M. INSTITUTE CONCERT

MRS. NEIL MATHIESON AND MR. BOWES-SMITH

A very enjoyable song-pianoforte recital by Mrs. Neil Mathieson and Mr. A. M. Bowes-Smith was given yesterday evening at the Helena May Institute.

Mrs. Neil Mathieson's fine contralto voice was very much appreciated by the large audience, and the group of three German songs Sapphische Ode (Brahms), Verborghenheit (Hugo Wolf) and Still wie die Nacht (Carl Bohm) were specially delightful. It was thoughtful, moreover, to have translations of the songs printed on the programme. All music lovers are, of course, fully conversant with the German language, but for those whose knowledge was rusty—well it saved trouble.

Mrs. McNair's second group, "Sweet Chance," Michael Head, "Cocou" (J. P. O'Hara), and "Love went a-riding" were also a very happy blending, and mention should here be made of the sympathetic and intelligent accompanying of Maurice Barton.

Mr. Bowes-Smith's playing of Chopin is of course well-known to local music lovers, and he is always sure of his audience. Yesterday the Scherzo, No. 4, in E Major gained the warmest applause. Mr. Bowes-Smith showed in every note his love of this very lovely composition, and his rendering was a real triumph.

Mr. Bowes-Smith opened the concert with the Scherzo No. 1 in B minor and the final number was Scherzo No. 2 in B Flat minor.

The programme was as follows:—
1.—Scherzo No. 1 in B Minor

Chopin.
2.—(a) Sapphische Ode ... Brahms.
(b) Verborghenheit ... Hugo Wolf.
(c) Still wie die Nacht

Carl Bohm
3.—Scherzo, No. 4 in E Major

Chopin.
3.—(a) Slumber Song Delius.
(b) The Nightingale Delius.
(c) Sweet Venevil Delius.

5.—Scherzo No. 3 in C Sharp Minor Chopin

6.—(a) Sweet Chance; that led my steps abroad. Michael Head.
(b) Cocou (Traditional) P. J. O'Hara.

(c) Love went a-riding Frank Bridge.

7.—Scherzo No. 2 in B Flat Minor Chopin.

At the Piano:—Mr. Maurice Barton.

THE LAND FOR THE STATE!

SOCIALISM'S IDEAS OF RURAL UTOPIA

Leicester.—This Socialist conference agreed unanimously to nationalise all the land. There "might" be exceptions, it was explained, in the case of land used for railways, canals, mines and quarries, but for all the rest one resolution suffices.

This State acquisition of all land (not covered by mines and railways) is but the preliminary to the scheme approved with acclamation for the national planning of agriculture, in which something defined as co-ordination will succeed personal enterprise by individual farmers.

There is to be a powerful Agricultural Commission, composed of producers, workers and consumers, responsible to the Minister for the administration and cultivation of all land. There will be county and local committees, and their function will be to raise the standard of life and to keep up a progressive increase of wages for farm workers every year over a period of years.

Other baits for the village labourer to vote Socialist include a special unemployment insurance fund, the abolition of the tied cottage system, and the control of imported produce. In this rural Utopia the farmer will become a Civil Servant with a wallet full of stock, seeds, fertilisers, and land schemes.

A brief exposition of this elaborate plan formed a thesis of nearly thirty closely printed pages, plus over two hours of speeches. It was explained that control over food imports did not mean tariffs nor any quota schemes to discriminate against any particular country.

But there is a rift within the lute on this matter of control. The Co-operative party, junior partner in this Socialist campaign, takes the extreme Free Trade attitude, and will tolerate no restriction of imports. The Socialists are not so sure about Free Trade, despite their election manifestos, and the two remain divided. Ever so, the scheme was carried with acclamation after Dr. Addison and (Continued on next column.)

ONE-CHILD PARENTS SPRING SURPRISE

MANY OF THEM WISH TO ADOPT ANOTHER

London County Council officials have interviewed the first of more than 80 people who have submitted applications since the Council, announced that it would be glad to hear from people who would like to adopt children from the 8,500 in its care.

"The greater number of the applicants ask for girls, and they nearly always ask that they should be under 10," said one of the officials to a reporter.

"The surprising thing is the number which come from parents who have only one child. Apparently being without expectation of another child of their own, and feeling that the companionship of a brother or sister is necessary for their own children's happiness or development, they have asked if they could adopt one of ours."

"There will be a trial period of from three to six months before the child is finally handed over to its new parents."

numerous other speakers had given it a fatherly blessing.

Police and Unemployed.

An emergency resolution carried called upon the Home Secretary to institute an immediate inquiry into the hatching of unemployed workers at North Shields and elsewhere, and Mr. George Lansbury undertook, on behalf of the Parliamentary party, to press Sir John Gilmour for full facilities to be granted to the unemployed to demonstrate anywhere. This provoked fervid and sentimental speeches and vociferous demands for a fair hearing and a fair chance for the unemployed.

All these crocodile tears and cheers on their behalf by a conference which has refused a hearing to the Leicester unemployed and which sits in a hall most sternly guarded every day against any possible approach by the workless!

SIR GEORGE PAISH OPTIMISTIC

WORLD ON THRESHOLD OF GREAT EXPANSION.

Sir George Paish, addressing the Bradford Textile Society on the world situation, said the growth of an international sentiment among the peoples of the world was bringing about a change which must undoubtedly have its effect before long on the actions of statesmen. For that reason he looked forward with very great hope to the World Economic Conference in January.

We were on the threshold of a far greater expansion than the world had seen. Nations were beginning to realise their interdependence. He was convinced that the trouble from which the world was suffering could largely be overcome, and for those engaged in business who had understanding and were prepared to give service to the world through their own people the prizes would be got.

In construction, the "Imperial" is a "sound British engineering job"—with all that the phrase implies.
